

Government is irresponsible to lavish more funds on Cathedrals when the Church can afford to pay

Posted: Tue, 9th Aug 2016

The National Secular Society has criticised the latest wave of taxpayer funding for cathedrals, after the Department for Culture, Media and Sport announced £14.5 million for repairs.

The money comes from the First World War Centenary Cathedral Repairs Fund and will see taxpayers' money go to 39 cathedrals.

£20 million of funding was announced in 2014, which was followed by a further sum of £20 million in March 2016.

Sir Paul Ruddock, who chairs the panel which assesses applications for funding, said that giving the Church more money for repair work "will stand as a very fitting memorial to the First World War a century earlier".

Keith Porteous Wood, executive director of the National Secular Society, commented:

"A centenary of the First World War is clearly a meaningless pretext to spend public money on cathedrals, many of which are extremely well funded. The Department for Culture Media and Sport has pointedly not demonstrated that they have even considered whether this work is essential and whether there are church funds available for it. In a period of such strain on the public purse this is irresponsible."

Dame Fiona Reynolds, the Chair of the Cathedrals Fabric Commission for England said the allocation of more government funding allowed cathedral staff and volunteers to have more "time and resources" and "renewed energy" for serving their cities and regions.

Secretary of State for Culture, Media and Sport Karen Bradley said:

"Cathedrals are powerful symbols of Britain's shared history. They are important not only for their architecture and heritage, but also for the vital role they play in local communities.

"I am delighted that the First World War Centenary Cathedral Repairs Fund will ensure that these wonderful cathedrals remain in a good state of repair and are preserved for future generations."

See also: For richer or poorer – where is the Church of England?

- Share on What's App
- Share on Facebook
- Share on Twitter
- Share on Email
- Subscribe to RSS Feed

Tags: Disestablishment

Related Campaigns

-

Disestablish the Church of England

A state religion has no place in a 21st century democracy.

Read More

Related Articles

NSS announces major conference on protecting liberal values

Kenan Malik, Joan Smith and more speaking at NSS Secularism 2024 conference in London. Read More »

New extremism definition may put free speech at risk, NSS warns

Proposed definition could 'label secularists as extremists'. Read More »

A state Church is no bulwark against extremism – but secularism is

With its commitment to the separation of religion and state and safeguarding the rights of all individuals, secularism can provide an effective defence against the spread of extremism, says Stephen Evans. Read More »

Report: CofE safeguarding “below standards” of secular institutions

Most victims and survivors unsatisfied with safeguarding approaches, while safeguarding 'weaponised' to remove those "seen as a nuisance", report finds. Read More »

Resist calls for £50m a year for churches, NSS urges minister

Churches trust also calls for churches to host NHS services. Read More »