

Author: Terry Sanderson

- 1
- 2
- 3
- 4
- 5
- 6
- 7

Why militant secularism is for believers, too

The New Scientist magazine had an interesting series of articles about the "science of religion" last week (which... Read More »)

Why militant secularism is for believers, too

The New Scientist magazine had an interesting series of articles about the "science of religion" last week (which... Read More »)

Why militant secularism is for believers, too

The New Scientist magazine had an interesting series of articles about the "science of religion" last week (which... Read More »)

The Church of England – myth and reality

We are told constantly how important the Church of England is to this country and how fond of it we all are. That... Read More »

Without a pack of lies to back them up, Christian claims of persecution fall flat on their face

The old adage "never believe what you read in the newspapers" has never been as apposite as it has been over the past... Read More »

Without a pack of lies to back them up, Christian claims of persecution fall flat on their face

The old adage "never believe what you read in the newspapers" has never been so apposite as it has been over the past... Read More »

Countless millions of taxpayers' money spent on discrimination in schools

We often complain about the increasing amount of religion in schools, but it is not until you look at the job advertisements... Read More »

Confrontation over gay marriage could change the relationship between religion and the state

It's happening all around the world. An increasingly politicised Catholic Church is manufacturing confrontations with... Read More »

The Tories will be watching how Republican's religion-in-politics tactic plays

The race for the Republican Party's Presidential nomination in the USA is turning into a religious farce. As Mitt... Read More »

Mr Pickles "community cohesion" policy is a recipe for conflict

Why is the Coalition Government increasingly embracing the policy of the US Republicans of appropriating religion... Read More »

The great debate begins

We've been trying for a long time to get a national debate going about the place of religion in British society. It... Read More »

Baroness Warsi and her gang of pious politicians are out of step with the nation

I'm sure Baroness Warsi's speech to the Pontifical Ecclesiastical Academy in Rome today will please its audience.... Read More »

Council prayer case will bring much abuse on to the head of the NSS

As we contemplate the implications of the High Court decision that the saying of prayers as part of local council... Read More »

Council prayer case will bring much abuse on to the head of the NSS

As we contemplate the implications of the High Court decision that the saying of prayers as part of local council... Read More »

The Catholic War on Democracy

At a Vatican meeting with Catholic bishops from the USA last month, the Pope told them that they had a duty to apply... Read More »

Bishops, too, are entitled to unpleasant opinions

A humanist politician in Ireland is trying to prosecute a Catholic Bishop for hate speech. Fine Gael election candidate... Read More »

Sentamu's shot at gay marriage is only the first salvo in a bitter battle to come

The Archbishop of York, John Sentamu, has warned the government that if it tries to legalise gay marriage, it will... Read More »

Misguided liberals are playing us all into the hands of the Islamist tyrants

A recent letter to The Guardian stated that 'over the past decade, a number of academic studies have indicated a... Read More »

Why do the bishops have the right to thwart democratically agreed legislation?

It was the Rt Rev John Packer, Bishop of Ripon and Leeds, who introduced the successful House of Lords amendment this... Read More »

Establishment and the gay bishop

Geoffrey John, the clergyman at the heart of the gay bishops row, is threatening to take the Church of England to... Read More »

A New Year when secularism must stand up for itself or be overwhelmed by religious power-seeking

The signs have been there for some considerable time – religion around the world is reviving, and it is not... Read More »

Cameron is joining the right-wing rush to religion

David Cameron's now notorious speech to the Church of England, in which he promised to elevate "Christian values"... Read More »

A predictable reaction to council prayer challenge

NSS President, Terry Sanderson, reflects on the hostile reaction from commentators to our challenge to prayers during... Read More »

Are Christian extremists at last being found out for what they are?

It seems that the fantasy world that has been created by the Christian Legal Centre and its rather scary head Andrea... Read More »

No, Mr Blair – for all our sakes, pulpits and parliament must remain separate

Is Tony Blair — the man who converted to Catholicism when he left the office of Prime Minister and went on to... Read More »

- 1
- 2
- 3
- 4
- 5
- 6
- 7