

Welby's political interventions seen as inappropriate, poll finds

Posted: Wed, 2nd Jan 2019

A plurality of the public thinks it is inappropriate for the archbishop of Canterbury to express opinions on political issues, a poll has found.

According to a YouGov survey reported by The Times, 44% of British people think it is "not appropriate" for the archbishop to "express opinions on political issues". Thirty-five per cent think doing so is appropriate, while 21% do not know.

The current archbishop, Justin Welby, made a series of political pronouncements during 2018 on subjects including welfare policy, the tax system, insecurity for workers and inequality caused by a "broken" economic model.

In a letter to The Times National Secular Society chief executive Stephen Evans said the poll results "should come as no surprise".

"Justin Welby is entitled to his views, but it is the privileged platform to promote them that most people will object to.

"Keeping religion and politics separate has promoted greater freedom and fairness for citizens wherever secularist principles have been put into practice. Religion should be free to compete in the marketplace of ideas but should be kept well away from the business of legislating."

The NSS campaigns for the separation of religion and politics, including through the disestablishment of the Church of England. The NSS also calls for the removal of the automatic right to sit in the House of Lords afforded to 26 C of E bishops.

In September Welby faced accusations of hypocrisy over his criticism of the tech giant Amazon, as it emerged that the Church of England held shares in the firm and had not attended its AGMs. It was also revealed that the church used zero hours contracts, which Welby described as "the reincarnation of an ancient evil".

The public largely agreed with Welby's sentiments on these subjects but still objected to his interventions. Fifty-three per cent agreed with him that universal credit left "too many people worse off".

Sixty-six per cent agreed that the current economic model was "broken" and had left "a widening gulf between rich and poor". Fifty-nine per cent agreed with his criticism of the tax system for allowing online companies to pay "almost nothing".

Thirty-nine per cent agreed with his criticism of zero-hours contracts, with 31% disagreeing.

Mr Evans said these figures were "a reminder that many people objected to the mix of religion and politics on principle, rather than because they dislike religious leaders' particular messages".

In response to the poll findings Lambeth Palace, the church's headquarters, told The Times: "The archbishop has been asked by some to stay out of politics. His response is that is not what Jesus did."

On New Year's Day the BBC broadcast a new year's message from Welby on BBC One.

Discuss this story on Facebook

While you're here

Our news and opinion content is an important part of our campaigns work. Many articles involve a lot of research by our campaigns team. If you value this output, please consider supporting us today.

- Support us from just £1 a month

- Share on What's App
- Share on Facebook
- Share on Twitter
- Share on Email
- Subscribe to RSS Feed

Tags: Disestablishment

Related Campaigns

-

Disestablish the Church of England

A state religion has no place in a 21st century democracy.

Read More

Related Articles

NSS announces major conference on protecting liberal values

Kenan Malik, Joan Smith and more speaking at NSS Secularism 2024 conference in London. Read More »

New extremism definition may put free speech at risk, NSS warns

Proposed definition could 'label secularists as extremists'. Read More »

A state Church is no bulwark against extremism – but secularism is

With its commitment to the separation of religion and state and safeguarding the rights of all individuals, secularism can provide an effective defence against the spread of extremism, says Stephen Evans. Read More »

Report: CofE safeguarding “below standards” of secular institutions

Most victims and survivors unsatisfied with safeguarding approaches, while safeguarding 'weaponised' to remove those "seen as a nuisance", report finds. Read More »

Resist calls for £50m a year for churches, NSS urges minister

Churches trust also calls for churches to host NHS services. Read More »