

NSS raises Vatican's defiance of abuse inquiry with Foreign Office

Posted: Fri, 27th Sep 2019

The National Secular Society has urged the government to hold the Vatican accountable over its continued failure to cooperate with a British public inquiry on child abuse.

The NSS has written to Foreign Office minister Tariq Ahmad over the issue after revelations at the Independent Inquiry on Child Sexual Abuse (IICSA) this week.

Counsel to the inquiry Jacqueline Carey said the Vatican had refused to supply written evidence or send witnesses about clerical misconduct in advance of hearings in October, despite a request to do so.

She told the inquiry on Wednesday: "The Holy See confirmed that it would not be providing a witness statement or a witness to attend the hearing. The Holy See considers that the 'domestic laws and internal proceedings of a foreign sovereign entity are not the proper object for a British inquiry'."

IICSA's request, which comes in advance of hearings into abuse in the Catholic Church due to take place in October, concerns issues including:

- Abuse at Ealing Abbey, in west London, and its associated school, St Benedict's
- The role of the Vatican's representative in Britain, the papal nuncio
- The Catholic Church's wider approach to abuse allegations.

Carey said the Vatican had told the inquiry its officials are "bound by rules of confidentiality and have immunity from being compelled to give evidence or produce documents".

The Vatican claimed that the papal nuncio to Britain, Edward Adams, had diplomatic immunity and could not be called to testify.

The inquiry also heard that the Vatican had "expressed reservations" about attempts to identify witnesses who could provide evidence about areas of concern which it had not addressed.

In its letter the NSS asked the Foreign Office to "step in to help the inquiry".

Chief executive Stephen Evans wrote: "We urge you, in the interests of the countless victims of Catholic clerical abuse, to bring all the pressure you can to ensure that the Vatican is not allowed to thwart the ability of IICSA to understand and address the significant institutional failures to protect children from sexual abuse within the Roman Catholic Church in England and Wales."

On Wednesday IICSA heard that the Foreign Office's job was "simply to facilitate the passage of correspondence between the inquiry and the Holy See".

Explaining the NSS's decision to write the letter, Mr Evans said: "The Catholic Church's continued failure to cooperate with the IICSA inquiry is unacceptable and again exposes

Pope Francis's empty rhetoric on tackling child abuse. In these circumstances the government must be prepared to pressurise the church's hierarchy to change its ways.

"And ultimately the government should be prepared to reconsider its relationship with the Vatican. A religious authority is claiming diplomatic immunity to prevent a British public inquiry from fulfilling its legitimate remit concerning child abuse which took place within the UK. It can't be allowed to defy justice so brazenly without consequence."

In February it was revealed that IICSA had written to the papal nuncio several times to request a statement but had received no response.

At the time the NSS wrote to prime minister Theresa May to urge her to put pressure on the Vatican over the issue. The society did not receive a response.

The pope also promised to take "concrete measures" to tackle abuse in February.

Image by Julius Silver from Pixabay.

Discuss on Facebook

While you're here

Our news and opinion content is an important part of our campaigns work. Many articles involve a lot of research by our campaigns team. If you value this output, please consider supporting us today.

- Support us from just £1 a month

- Share on What's App
- Share on Facebook
- Share on Twitter
- Share on Email
- Subscribe to RSS Feed

Tags: Abuse

Related Campaigns

-

End abuse in religious settings

Religious privilege must not undermine safeguarding and justice.

Read More

Related Articles

Experts speak out against religious abuse

Public authorities failing to tackle abuse in religious settings, panellists say at NSS event. Read More »

Report: CofE safeguarding “below standards” of secular institutions

Most victims and survivors unsatisfied with safeguarding approaches, while safeguarding 'weaponised' to remove those "seen as a nuisance", report finds. Read More »

Faith school banning parts of geography lessons, Ofsted finds

Ofsted finds faith school prohibiting parts of lessons it judges incompatible with its religious beliefs. Read More »

NSS to hold event on tackling abuse in religious communities

Safeguarding experts in panel discussion in Manchester this March. Read More »

Review: CofE leaders mainly to blame for sacking safeguarding body

"Extreme time pressure" imposed chiefly by archbishop of Canterbury caused "serious design flaws" in safeguarding board, review finds Read More »