

NSS: council should tackle discriminatory school admissions in review

Posted: Wed, 5th Aug 2020

The National Secular Society has called on Liverpool City Council to consider the impact of discriminatory admissions policies in faith schools as it reviews its policies towards school admissions.

Last week the council set up a panel to consider how rules on admissions disadvantage children from ethnic and religious minority backgrounds.

The review comes after a group of Muslim parents in the city said admissions criteria for faith schools and academies nearby meant their children often ended up having to travel long distances to school.

The parents also said some of the girls had faced anti-Muslim abuse on the journey.

In a letter to Barbara Murray, the council's cabinet member for education, the NSS welcomed the review and recommended steps which the council could take to improve access to inclusive schools.

Contents of NSS letter

The NSS said the council should:

- Consider the impact of faith schools in restricting school choice and suitability as it monitors local school provision.
- Explicitly tell the government that it would prefer inclusive community schools if new schools were required in Liverpool.
- Ensure the admissions policies for existing voluntary controlled faith schools, where councils are the admissions authority, did not endorse religious discrimination.
- Ensure its wider policies supported inclusive schooling and prioritised social cohesion.

The NSS also highlighted evidence that local families had been affected by discriminatory admissions policies:

- The society is currently working with a parent in Liverpool who is concerned that her child with special educational needs may not be able to access a suitable non-faith school.
- Elsewhere a family in the city was unable to send their child to a school just five metres from their house because they didn't attend the local church.
- NSS supporters in Liverpool have noted that many local parents attend church just to secure a place at a convenient school.

NSS comment

NSS head of education Alastair Lichten said the council should "take this opportunity to make Liverpool's schools more inclusive".

"The council is rightly concerned that school admissions processes may be exacerbating racial and social inequalities. It's unjustifiable that some children have to travel across the city to school and appalling that some have faced anti-Muslim abuse while doing so.

"Admissions policies in faith schools are unfair and far too complex nationally, and that needs national attention. But there are a series of practical steps available to councillors which would help to defend inclusive community schooling and make children more welcome. We urge them to take them."

Need for national response

The NSS's letter also noted that many necessary changes to address the problem would need to be addressed at national level.

In 2018 a government-commissioned report found that poorer pupils and pupils from ethnic minority backgrounds were significantly less likely to get into church schools than their counterparts.

A 2018 report from the NSS, The Choice Delusion, also highlighted the ways faith schools impede on school choice for many families, including through discriminatory admissions policies.

Discuss on Facebook

No more faith schools

We need inclusive schools free from religious discrimination, privilege or control. Join our campaign.

- Find out more
- Donate

- Share on What's App
- Share on Facebook
- Share on Twitter
- Share on Email
- Subscribe to RSS Feed

Tags: Faith schools, Public services, School admissions

Related Campaigns

-

End religious discrimination in school admissions

No child should face discrimination for their family's religion or belief.

Read More

-

No more faith schools

We need inclusive schools free from religious discrimination, privilege or control.

Read More

-

Keep public services secular

Public services intended for the whole community should be provided in a secular context.

Read More

Related Articles

Councils say faith schools disadvantaging looked after children

Evidence increasing that faith schools disadvantage those with greatest need. Read More »

Faith schools “most socially selective”, report finds

Faith schools admit disproportionately fewer pupils on free school meals, says Sutton Trust. Read More »

Faith schools’ admissions criteria found in breach of regulations

Schools highlighted by the National Secular Society for coercive and controlling behaviour found to be non-compliant with regulations. Read More »

NSS urges government to keep cap on faith-based admissions

Community cohesion and rights of children must come before religious interests, NSS tells schools minister Read More »

Election 2019: pledges that should be in the parties' manifestos

As the UK's political parties consider their manifestos for the upcoming election, NSS chief executive Stephen Evans... Read More »