

Faith school 'breaching' equality law over sex segregation, says report

Posted: Thu, 8th Jul 2021

The school inspectorate Ofsted has said an independent faith school "appears to be in breach" of equality law by segregating male and female pupils in lessons.

Boys at Leeds Menorah School are taught about Jewish criminal and civil law but girls are not, according to a report published Wednesday.

School leaders say boys need this subject for their higher education but it is "less relevant" to girls, the report said, adding that this separation by sex appeared to be in breach of the Equality Act 2010.

Staff also told Ofsted that boys and girls are expected to sit separately in lessons.

The school was rated 'inadequate' by Ofsted in 2019 and found to not meet the standards for independent schools in follow-up visits in February 2020 and May this year.

The latest report, from the May inspection, also criticised the school for a variety of other reasons. These included its lack of information regarding relationships and sex education, areas of the site that were unsafe, and safeguarding failings in its recruitment procedures.

Sex segregation in faith schools

Segregating pupils according to sex within mixed sex schools was found to amount to unlawful sex discrimination in a landmark ruling in 2017.

The Court of Appeal found Ofsted was correct to penalise Al-Hijrah school, a state-funded Islamic school in Birmingham, for segregating boys and girls for all lessons, break and lunchtimes, school trips and school clubs.

In 2017 National Secular Society research also found a number of state-funded Jewish schools teaching different religious studies curricula to male and female pupils.

In 2019, Ofsted criticised several independent faith schools after they were found to be segregating pupils by sex.

These included Gateshead Jewish Nursery School, Markazul Uloom in Blackburn, Al-Khair School in Croydon, Rochdale Islamic Academy and The Imam Muhammad Adam Institute School in Leicester.

NSS comment

Megan Manson, head of policy and research at the NSS, welcomed Ofsted's intervention.

"Schools shouldn't be allowed to discriminate in this manner by deeming certain subjects off-limits to pupils based on their sex, or encouraging boys and girls to sit separately.

"Schools certainly shouldn't be allowed to contravene the law – they should be held to account equally, regardless of religion.

"And where schools repeatedly fail, religious sensitivities shouldn't stand in the way of the action needed to protect children's rights."

Independent faith schools which keep failing

The NSS has previously raised concerns with the government over children's rights at independent faith schools which repeatedly fail inspections, including in a letter to the Department for Education last year.

The DfE has since taken action, or indicated a willingness to take action, in some cases which the NSS has raised.

Image by Taken from Pixabay.

While you're here

Our news and opinion content is an important part of our campaigns work. Many articles involve a lot of research by our campaigns team. If you value this output, please consider supporting us today.

- Support us from just £1 a month

- Share on What's App
- Share on Facebook
- Share on Twitter
- Share on Email
- Subscribe to RSS Feed

Tags: Faith schools, Women

Related Campaigns

-

No more faith schools

We need inclusive schools free from religious discrimination, privilege or control.

Read More

-

Women's rights

End religious subordination of women and girls.

Read More

Related Articles

Faith school banning parts of geography lessons, Ofsted finds

Ofsted finds faith school prohibiting parts of lessons it judges incompatible with its religious beliefs. Read More »

Faith schools' admissions criteria found in breach of regulations

Schools highlighted by the National Secular Society for coercive and controlling behaviour found to be non-compliant with regulations. Read More »

NSS tells Scottish Government to keep religious dogma out of sex ed

NSS: provisions in new guidance on sex education leaves door open for religious ideology, risking children's wellbeing. Read More »

NSS: Don't let NI faith schools fail pupils on reproductive rights

Requirement for RSE to reflect "religious principles" conflicts with neutral lessons on reproductive health in NI schools, NSS says. Read More »

Faith schools should not impose hijab on girls, report says

Report also recommends government resist 'Islamophobia' definitions that inhibit criticism of religious practices Read More »