

Tags: Crematoria

Government recommends crematoria be for “all faiths and none”

Posted: Fri, 12 Apr 2019

Government guidance has said crematoria should accommodate the needs of people of "all faiths and none", following NSS recommendations. Read More »

Council proposes secular remembrance space following NSS intervention

Posted: Tue, 24 Jul 2018

The City of Edinburgh Council has proposed creating a new remembrance space without religious symbols following advice from the National Secular Society. Read More »

Crematoria should be religiously neutral and welcoming to all

Posted: Tue, 24 May 2016

The National Secular Society (NSS) has urged the Government to ensure that all state-owned crematoria are religiously neutral, allowing religious symbols to be added when requested. Read More »

Compromise over cross at crematorium

Posted: Thu, 14 Jun 2012

As part of a recent refurbishment of Haycombe Crematorium, Bath & North East Somerset Council removed a prominent window with a Christian cross etched on it and replaced it with plain glass. This was an effort to make clear that the building was for the use of the whole community, not just Christians. Read More »

Christians told: you don't own the local crematorium

Posted: Wed, 07 Mar 2012

Christians are outraged that a window at a crematorium in Bath that is etched with a cross is to be removed and replaced with plain glass. Read More »