

Author: Keith Sharpe and Chris Higgins

We must stop giving public funds to religious colleges which restrict academic freedom

Many religious higher education providers are shirking their duty to uphold freedom of expression and academic freedom. Christopher Higgins and Keith Sharpe say it's time to stop funding these institutions. Read More »

Should specialist theological colleges receive public funds for higher education?

Specialist theological colleges focused on doctrinal training create inherent conflict with the academic freedom and... Read More »

The Church of England's offensive in FE colleges must be resisted

This piece was originally published in FE Week and is republished here with kind permission.

C of E proposals to increase... Read More »